"The body building is the heart of Evobus em Mannheim. We will not allow this to be relocated completely," said the first authorized and business-based IG Metall Mannheim, Thomas Hahl. "We do not take this without a fight, but will now go into a tough argument." Industry expert Ferdinand Dudenhöffer told the "Mannheimer Morgen" (Thursday) that the Mannheim location had the chance to profile itself with new drives. The current Daimler AG was born in 2007 after the sale of Chrysler Group at Cerberus Capital Management L.P. The previous company "DaimlerChrysler Ag" had emerged in 1998, after Daimler-Benz's fuse with Chrysler Corporation, giving rise to a company of action according to German law. History Daimler-Motoren -gesellschaft (1890-1926) The same tonic in detail: Daimler-Motoren -geschaft. DMG Werk Untortá e Camerkheim 1911 In 1883, Gottlieb Daimler secured the patent for a "Incandescent pipe ignition engine" as well as "engine speed adjustment controlling the control of the van valve exhaust". The two patents were the basis for the first crumbling rupture engines in the world. Long years later, Karl Benz patented the car, a vehicle of Town Wheels with a turntable and ignition engine. Companies born of the works of the two pioneers or "Benz & Co Rheinische Casmotorenfabrik Mannheim" (Benz & Cie. Since 1899) and "Daimler-Motoren -geschaft" were mixed on June 28, 1926 at Daimler-Benz Agrarschaft " Headquarters in Berlín Daimler-Benz (1926-1998) the same T. Daimler-Benz. The new company soon gave Great stages in the Wilhelm Friedle, director of the Daimler-Benz AG Werk Sindelfingen company from 1927 to 1935 imported the US assembly chain system in Germany. The company has always been the protagonist in the innovation of the automobile market, for example, creating the passenger's protective cell in 1951 and in 1981 the airbag and the pretensor. In 1962, he employed 90,000 employees with a turnover of 4.4 billion brands. In 1972, there were 149,800 employees and a turnover of 13.3 billion brands. Since the 1980s, the company has expanded, under the guidance of the Chairman of the Management Board of Edzard Reuter, in other sectors: the company acquires Dornier GmbH, the MTU (Union-Union-Union), so that as the AEG. The "Deutsche Aerospace AG" (DASA) was formed from parts of these companies. In addition, you merge your vehicular technology division with that of ABB creating adtranz. Also "Deutsche Airbus GmbH" and "Daimler-Benz Inter Services" (Debis) were founded by Daimler-Benz, so the group consisted of four divisions, including this car. In 1989, Daimler-Benz AG (with AEG) had 368,200 employees and a turnover of 76,392 billion brands. In 1990, the turnover reached 85,500 billion. When he became the CEO, Jä came Schrempf in 1995, he began a change, of course, compared to Reuter's dream of "integrated technologies for groups". Loss companies such as Fokker, AEG, Adtranz and Dornier were eliminated by the group, in part with enormous costs, although Schrempf, for example, favored the purchase of Fokker when he was president of CESA. DaimlerChrysler AG (1998-2007) DaimlerChrysler AG logo. In 1998, Daimler-Benz and Chrysler merged into a "fusion between equals" in the new DaimlerChrysler AG. The new company is based in Stuttgart, while the board (composed at the beginning of the two groups in an equal way) meets alternately in Stuttgart and Auburn. After two years, co-President Robert Eaton retired, so that Jürgen Schrempp became the CEO. Jürgen Schrempp approved the task on January 1, 2006 for Dieter Zetsche. Gradually, the German component on the board has acquired more and more weight. Soon his arrival on January 1, 2006, the new CEO Dieter Zetsche announced an important reduction plan. 6,000 seats were eliminated in the next few years. In 2006, the new Mercedes-Benz museum was opened next to the Stuttgart-Untirú Pepper Plant. In an exhibition area of 16,500 m²: 160 venaces are displayed, in addition to restaurants and shops. It is the biggest museum made by a car brand. In 2007, Chrysler was sold to the American fund Curberus Capital Management and the new company took the definitive name of Daimler AG.
